About JCOTS Advisory Committees

- Each year JCOTS forms new advisory committees to examine policies that will help the Commonwealth keep pace with emerging industries and advancements in technology.
- Advisory committees consist of private and government professionals in substantive areas of technology, policy, and law.
- Each advisory committee is chaired by a legislative member.

Advisory Committees are formed to address bills referred by the General Assembly, current events, or topics of interest to JCOTS members

2010 JCOTS Advisory Committees

What is the Role of an Advisory Committee?

- Assist JCOTS members in understanding complex technologies and policy perspectives;
- Collaborate in the development of sound public policy related to a variety of scientific and technology topics;
- Identify topics ripe for staff development as policy briefs or research reports;
- Develop, review and discuss technology related legislation for recommendation to & consideration by JCOTS; and
- Gather experts from across the Commonwealth to foster an open discussion of issues among industry and government leaders.

How does JCOTS Interact with the Advisory Committees?

1. Advisory committees meet throughout the Interim.
2. The advisory committees report their findings, recommendations, and legislative proposals to JCOTS.
3. JCOTS relies heavily on the work of the advisory committees in developing sound policies related to science and technology in the Commonwealth, and in deciding whether or not to recommend legislation to the General Assembly.

Advisory Committee Housekeeping

- All non-legislative advisory committee members must complete a citizen member information sheet and return it to staff to keep on file.
- For each meeting that reimbursement or expenses are requested, member must complete a reimbursement form and return it to staff.
